BOSTON CLOSING QUOTATIONS.

UNLISTED DEPARTMENT TRANSACTIONS.

LATEST LONDON QUOTATIONS.

THUESDAY, April 20. It was announced shortly after the close of business that Secretary Carlisle would issue a stement this evening setting forth the policy the Government relative to the redemption Treasury notes in gold, together with the eral reasons in support of the position he advise the Government to take. Some ides of what will happen if the Government deides to discontinue the redemption of Treasary notes in gold may be formed from what oc ed in the foreign exchange market to-day. That market was governed entirely by appreon that payment of gold upon Treasury tes is about to be suspended. Some drawers vanced their posted asking rates for sterling half a cent a pound, to $4.88% for sixty-day bills and $4.90% for sight drafts. It is many years since rates for the two classes of exchange have been as high as to-day's figures at the same time. In 1891 the highest nominal rate for demand exchange was $4.10, but at the same time long bills were quoted at $4.87. In 1889 the highposted rate for sight bills was $4.90 and for long $4.88. The year before that the rate long sterling did not go higher than $4.88%, and that also was the highest figure in 1886. In both years $4.90 was the highest caking rate for sight exchange. The above ons are the highest recorded within the ast decade until to-day. Another significant feature is that rarely, if ever, have the actual rates been as close to nominal quotations as they are now. One reason for the rength of the foreign exchange market is that many bankers are rejuctant to draw lis. The advance, however, did not deter rers from buying freely. In addition to the scentile demand there was a good inquiry on bankers, who have been directed by their foreign correspondents to forward balances that have been allowed to remain here. Upon this same point it is to be noted that some of the Canadian banks have been instructed to remit to their home offices at once money that has been employed in this market. Gold to the amount of $500,000 was withdrawn from the Sub-Treasury to-day for this purpose.

One of the heaviest shippers of gold arranged at the Sub-Treasury to-day for the withdrawal of $750,000 gold to-morrow for shipment on Saturday. It obtained the coin upon presentation of legal tender and Treas-ury notes and gold certificates. The Treasury notes were turned in it was understood, partly with the view of ascertaining whether an order had been issued discontinuing the payment of gold for those notes. Present indications are that to-morrow's drafts upon the Treasury's stock of gold will be unusually heavy, for the total exports on Saturday, including $500,000 to Canada, will be approximately $4,000,000. The most significant feature of the foreign ex-change market was the offer of certain bankers to sell their bills at a concession from ruling rates of % of 1 7 cent., which is nearly equivalent to half a cent a pound, to buyers who would agree to pay in gold. The inpleasant conclusion from this is that the transaction involves a premium of % of 1 % cent. on gold.

Actual rates for sterling are now at a point where shipments of gold can be made to Lon-don at a profit. This has not been the case for long time. The principal drawers on London, however, are very rejuctant to export specie, and are unanimous in stating that they will not do so unless compelled by the demand for exchange from their regular customers. Unless the Western and Southern banks have made generous contributions of gold to the Treasury, the so-called legal tender reserve fund will unquestionably be cut into to-morrow, though the regular state-ment of Treasury balances may not show the fact for several days thereafter. If at the same time, as Washington despatches foreshadow, the Government sus-pends goldpayments upon Treasury notes, two events much dreaded by the financial community will occur simultaneously. What will happen after that no one ventures seriously to predict. Down to the present time the stock market has been drifting pending the an-nouncement of a definite financial policy by the Government or developments that would indicate the course it intends to pursue.

The stock market opened barely steady, be-ing influenced a little by higher quotations for American securities in London; but foreign arbitrage houses bought very few stocks. and, as support from no other quarter was dis-cernible, the professional element resumed its attacks upon values. After the first hour the market became comparatively dull, but in the to a renewal of the bearish pressure upon Missouri Pacific. That stock, which proved to be the leader in point of activity, sustained a maximum decline of 3 points, but in the final dealings railied sharply, so that the net loss was a little less, than 1 % cent. The final improvement in prices was based upon a report that the Treasury Department would aunounce after 3 o'clock that a plan had been devised for improving the financial situation and restoring confidence. The alacrity with which the Board Room talent proceeded to close some of their short contracts in consequence of this rumor was amusing.

Noteworthy dealings other than those in Missouri Pacific were in Sugar Refining, which, with Chicago Gas and National Cordage, closed fractionally higher than yesterday; in Western Union, St. Paul, C. B. and Ouiney, General way. The last and Western Union and General Electric sustained an average not loss of 1 # cent. while the remainder of the list closed only fractionally lower than yesterday. The market as a whole was fairly active and the tone was feverish throughout.

Justice Barrett of the Supreme Court was notified resterday that the two actions brought under assignments of the claims of his mother and her three other children for an indefinite sum. running into the hundred thousands, against Jacob and William Miles, had been settled. The cases had been on trial before Justice Barrett for a number of days, and he was considering his decision.

Samuel A. Hurley, who died in 1863, had been associated with the defendants in the tannery business. The widow and children claimed that the defendants had fraudulently concealed and converted part of the property of Hurley. The Jefendants contended that the actions had not been brought in good faith.

The respective charges were withdrawn by both sides before Justice Barrett. Counsel refused to state the terms of settlement. sum, running into the hundred thousands,
